Data Centers: Opportunity, Challenge and the Decisions Ahead

Robert Raker
CEO/GM

Thomas Jefferson once wrote, “We have the wolf by the ears, and we can neither hold him, nor safely let him go.” While he was writing about an entirely different issue, and far more profound issue, that phrase captures the kind of policy dilemma we face when talking about Artificial Intelligence and data centers. Data centers are a factor that is driving electric costs and infrastructure investments whether South Dakota participates or not. The question is whether we simply bear those costs without sharing in the benefits, or do we find a way to allow them into our state that benefits our communities.

Over the past year, this topic has come up repeatedly in conversations across the electric industry. Data centers are the facilities that store, process, and manage the digital information that powers much of our modern world. Whether you’re checking your bank account online, streaming a movie, using social media, or interacting with artificial intelligence, there’s a good chance a data center is working behind the scenes.

As electric cooperatives across the country look toward the future, data centers are becoming an increasingly important part of the conversation. While West River Electric does not currently serve a large data center, it’s worth taking a closer look at both the opportunities and challenges these facilities create for electric systems and the communities they serve. As with most issues, there are two sides to the story. Let’s start with the opportunities.

Data centers can bring significant investment into a region. The companies developing many of these projects are among the largest in the world, and new facilities often require hundreds of millions, or even billions of dollars in capital investment. They can expand the local tax base, create construction jobs, support local businesses, and contribute to long-term economic development.

For an electric cooperative, a large industrial customer can also provide operational benefits when structured appropriately. Because data centers typically operate 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, they have what the electric industry calls a high load factor. That consistent demand allows utilities to make better use of existing infrastructure and can help spread fixed system costs across a greater number of kilowatt-hours.

However, these opportunities do not come without challenges. 10850100

The most obvious is the enormous amount of electricity these facilities require. Some of today’s largest data centers consume as much electricity as a City. Serving that level of demand may require major investments in generation, transmission, substations, and distribution facilities.

Water usage is another topic that often comes up in these discussions. While early data centers could require significant amounts of water for cooling, many of the modern designs being proposed today utilize closed-loop cooling systems that dramatically reduce ongoing water consumption. Like any major project, the details matter, and each proposal should be evaluated on its own merits.

The rapid growth of data centers is also affecting the electric industry in less obvious ways. Across the country, demand for transformers, breakers, switchgear, and other critical electrical equipment has increased dramatically. Those same materials are needed for the everyday reliability improvements and system expansion that cooperatives like West River Electric make each year on behalf of our members. Longer lead times and higher costs affect every utility, regardless of whether it serves a data center.

Perhaps the most important question is who pays for the infrastructure needed to serve these large loads.

During a recent board discussion, one director summed it up well:

“I’m working on not subsidizing my own kids. Why would I want to subsidize a data center?”

That simple statement captures an important principle: the ones creating the cost should be the ones paying the cost. West River Electric’s board has been upfront that a data center’s costs will be assigned appropriately rather than shifted onto existing members. Fortunately, many of the developers we are working with today recognize that expectation is being taken at Coops and Utilities across the US and are willing to make significant investments in the infrastructure their projects require. In fact, we’re also beginning to see some developers are also incorporating on-site generation into their projects. However, they still play a critical role because they’re interconnected to the grid, which would only be providing reliability and backup service. 10849000

As your electric cooperative, West River Electric will continue evaluating these opportunities carefully. Every project must make sense for our members, our communities, and the long-term financial health of the cooperative.

Whether we welcome them or not they are expected to continue growing. No matter how these conversations evolve, one thing will remain unchanged: West River Electric’s commitment to serving our members’ interests by providing safe, reliable, and affordable electricity.

Thank you for your continued trust in West River Electric.

2026 Operation Round-Up Recipients Selected

Christine Ritter

Marketing Representative

On June 19, 2026, the five-person Operation RoundUp Board of Directors met to go through Non-Profit applications needing funding support for their projects. This year we are proud to announce a total of $11,000 was awarded to eight different entities. They are:

- C.O.R.E. Freshman Impact: $1,500
- Rapid City Club for Boys: $1,000
- St. Vincent DePaul: $1,000
- Sturgis High School Rodeo Booster Club: $2,500
- Suncatcher Therapeutic Riding Academy: $1,000
- Working Against Violence (WAVI): $1,000
- White Owl Community Center: $2,000

Scan Here to Learn More!

- Youth in Science Rapid City, Inc: $1,000

This impact was made possible by the 1,199 members who participate each month in rounding up their bill to the nearest whole dollar. This program is completely voluntary, and we cannot thank those members enough for their contributions in supporting our communities and local non-profits.

What is Operation RoundUp and How to Get Involved

Operation Round-Up is a voluntary program that does just what the name implies. Each month, participating members elect to "round up" their electric bill to the nearest whole dollar. For Example, a member's monthly bill of $56.75 would be automatically rounded up to $57.00, with the additional $0.25 going to the Operation Round-Up fund.

If you wish to participate in rounding up your monthly electric bill and help communities complete projects and thrive, please visit our website, www.westriver.coop, and sign up online under the "Membership" tab or scan the QR code below. All donations are tax deductible, and members are sent a summary of yearly contributions each January.

We encourage you to check out the program and let your non-profit friends know about the funding available. 4-H clubs, Booster clubs, charitable community organizations, etc, are all great candidates to apply for funding. If you have any questions please reach at 605-279-2135 or 605-393-1500.

As unmanned aerial systems (UAS) increasingly populate recreational and professional skies, safety remains paramount – especially near critical infrastructure such as overhead power lines. Today we reaffirm that drones should be flown in open spaces away from electrical lines and substations to prevent power outages and dangerous debris that can threaten public safety.

A drone colliding with a power line can cause outages and, if lines are downed, create serious electrical hazards for anyone nearby. Touching downed lines or debris that has fallen on fences, trees or other objects can result in severe injury or death. If you encounter downed power lines, immediately call 911 and notify emergency personnel and the utility company.

To ensure safe and compliant drone operations, follow federal registration and business-approval requirements, and stay informed about local, state and community regulations. FAA safety guidelines remain essential: Inspect your drone for damage before each flight and repair any issues prior to use. Fly at or below 400 feet unless FAA authorization or an allowed exception applies. Maintain visual line of sight; do not fly beyond it. Avoid airports, manned aircraft, stadiums and crowds of people. Do not fly for unapproved commercial purposes without FAA authorization. Refrain from flying in bad weather, including low visibility or high winds. Never fly recklessly or endanger others; violations can result in fines and penalties.

It is encouraged that drone operators plan routes that maximize safety and minimize proximity to power infrastructure. Responsible pilots, adherence to FAA guidelines and awareness of local rules can prevent outages, injuries and potentially tragic consequences. For more information on legal requirements and best practices, consult FAA resources and your local utility providers.

Together, we can enjoy the benefits of drone technology while safeguarding our communities and critical electrical infrastructure.

As drone use expands, operators should build safety into every mission from the outset. Calibration, pre-flight checklists, and robust maintenance programs help catch issues before takeoff. Operators are encouraged to use situational awareness tools, such as real-time weather updates and wind assessments, to adjust flight plans accordingly. Community education events and outreach can foster a responsible culture among hobbyists and professionals alike, reinforcing the shared responsibility to protect power networks and nearby residents. By prioritizing safety, we preserve access to this transformative technology for all.

From That First Sip of Coffee to the Last Light Out

Amanda Haugen

Communications
Specialist

Most of us don't spend much time thinking about electricity—until it's not there. That's because reliable power has become such a seamless part of everyday life.

From that first sip of coffee in the morning to the last light switched off at night, electricity powers the moments that matter most. It keeps refrigerators cold, water flowing, devices charged, businesses operating and families connected. It's there for school mornings, late-night homework, family dinners and everything in between.

At West River Electric, reliability isn't something that happens by chance. It's the result of careful planning, ongoing maintenance and a dedicated team working behind the scenes every day to keep the lights on. Long before storms roll in, line crews are inspecting lines, replacing equipment and strengthening our system to help prevent outages before they happen.

And when severe weather does strike, our linemen are ready to respond. Whether it's the heat of summer, freezing winter temperatures or the middle of the night, they answer the call to restore power safely and as quickly as possible. Their work often happens in conditions most of us would rather avoid, but their commitment to serving our members never changes.

Reliable electricity is something we often take for granted because it's there when we need it. Behind every switch your flip is a team dedicated to providing safe, reliable service to our members across western South Dakota.

So tomorrow morning, as you pour that first cup of coffee or gather with family at the end of the day, remember there's a lot of work happening behind the scenes to make those everyday moments possible. That's the value of reliable electricity—and the commitment West River Electric is proud to deliver every day.

A PAST FIT FOR THE FUTURE

Cultural Center & State Museum Reopens After Extensive Renovation

Jacob Boyko

jacob.boyko@sdrea.coop

After more than two years spent closed for renovation, South Dakota's state museum and cultural center is back up and running to share the story of South Dakota and its people with visitors from across the state and beyond.

The iconic museum built into the Pierre hillside held its grand reopening July 1 in time for the nation's 250th birthday, showing off new exhibits, a gift shop and an expansion that includes a larger meeting room and more space for its archives.

For Museum Director David Grabitske, the reopening marks a new chapter for the South Dakota State Historical Society, which oversees both the museum and state archives housed there. But it also honors the first laws set forth by the Dakota Territory's first territorial legislature, outlining specific steps and functions for historical preservation for untold future generations of its citizens.

According to Grabitske, many of the first Dakotan settlers were determined to preserve the history they were making day by day as settlers on the vast American frontier.

"The first three acts [by the territorial legislature] were all about transferring property at the end of life – it's all about inheritance," Grabitske explained. "The fourth act of the territory created the historical society. In my mind, the fourth act goes along with those first three acts; it's about how we give things to the future."

Establishing a historical society demonstrated confidence that there would be a future for the Dakota Territory – complete with a permanent population that would live, grow and prosper there.

"We have a mantra around here," Grabitske said. "We collect today for tomorrow's history."

What that sentiment has amounted to is a sprawling collection of more than 17,000 cubic feet of paper, 50 terabytes of data on its servers, and more than 35,000 individual objects.

"The very first collections that arrived were in 1863, and we still have those in our library," Grabitske said. "They were library books – 514 of them in 11 boxes."

In the process of collecting and disseminating information, historical societies at the time would collect and make copies of books to trade with other historical societies to expand their collections and diffuse knowledge across a wider area and reduce the risk of losing records to fire.

You'll find those 160 years' worth of books, deeds, contracts and reports throughout the high-ceilinged, climate-controlled archive wing of the building – but you'll also find objects that aren't necessarily old or inherently valuable.

"The reason we add something into our collection is because it's historic, and what we mean by historic is it has significance and integrity," Grabitske explained. "Something being 'old' just fixes it in time. What makes something historic is that it is significant – it tells the story of people in South Dakota, and it has integrity, which means a certain completeness to tell that story."

To illustrate the point, Grabitske described a recent addition to the museum's collection – a painted tire with the words "no hunting."

"You see these things going down the road [in South Dakota], and we realized we were missing [one for the museum]," he explained. "We found one near Timber Lake which had a story. The lady who gave it to us (family of Dorothy Dopp, courtesy of the Timber Lake & Area Museum) had put it up in 1967 and she had faithfully painted it over the years and knew the dates she had painted it. We don't need 400 of these tires – we need one to represent the whole state."

Visitors to the museum this summer can experience the first three rooms of the updated exhibits. These sections house a welcome area, 'What is History?' exhibit and a gallery. The remaining sections are slated for completion in December 2026 and will feature exhibits on South Dakota's environment, people, politics, conflicts and more.

Understanding Your Electric Bill

Amanda Haugen
Communications
Specialist

August is typically one of the warmest months of the year, and that means air conditioners across our community are working overtime to keep homes comfortable. During periods of extreme heat, many members may see an increase in their electric bill and wonder what factors contribute to the cost of electricity.

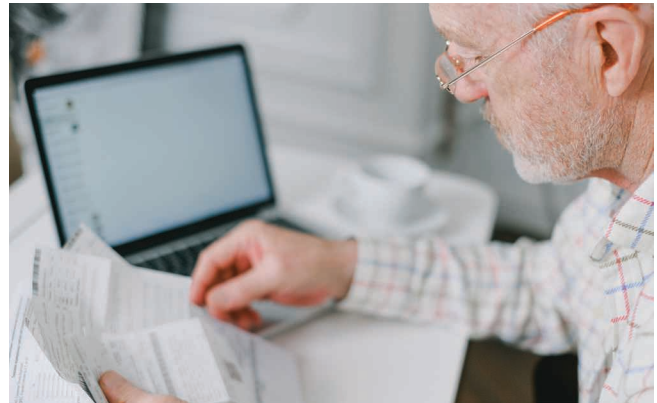

At West River Electric, we believe understanding your electric bill is an important part of being an informed member. While the total amount due may seem like a single number, it actually reflects several different costs associated with delivering reliable electricity to your home or business.

The largest factor is often the amount of energy you use. Electricity is measured in kilowatt-hours (kWh), and the more energy your household consumes, the higher your bill will be. During the summer, air conditioning is typically the largest driver of increased energy use. When temperatures climb into the 90s or higher, our cooling systems run longer and more frequently, consuming significantly more electricity than they do during milder weather.

Another major factor is the cost of generating or purchasing electricity. Like many cooperatives, WREA purchases power from Basin Electric Power Cooperative. The cost of producing electricity fluctuates based on fuel prices, including natural gas, coal and other energy resources used to generate power. Changes in wholesale power costs influence the price of electricity delivered to members. 11611400

Transmission costs also play a role. Before electricity reaches your home, it must travel across a network of high-voltage transmission lines that connect power plants to local distribution systems. Transmission equipment requires ongoing maintenance and upgrades to ensure reliability, especially as electricity demand continues to grow.

Closer to home, WREA maintains the local electric distribution system—utility poles, power lines, transformers, substations and other essential equipment that safely delivers power to members. Maintaining this equipment is covered through the monthly base charge. This is a flat monthly fee all members pay, regardless of how much electricity they use. This fixed fee ensures all members pay a fair share of the basic, operational costs required to keep the power grid reliable and ready to serve your home or business. Whether a member uses a little electricity or a lot, we must maintain infrastructure and have crews, equipment and resources available to provide electricity around the clock.

Summer temperatures can also influence costs in less obvious ways. When the demand for electricity is high across a region, wholesale power prices can increase. Utilities and grid operators must ensure enough generation is available to meet peak demand, and those costs can be reflected throughout the electric system.

The good news is that simple steps to lower energy use can make a meaningful difference. Setting your thermostat a few degrees higher when you're away, replacing dirty HVAC filters, using ceiling fans, sealing air leaks and avoiding the use of major appliances during the hottest parts of the day can help reduce energy consumption, lower your bill and reduce strain on the local grid during peak demand.

West River Electric's mission is to serve our members' best interests, and that includes providing safe, reliable and affordable electricity while being transparent about the factors that impact energy costs. We understand every dollar matters, and we are committed to making smart investments that keep the lights on and support the communities we serve.

If you ever have questions about your electric bill or co-op programs designed to help you save, please reach out. We're here to help you make informed decisions that work for your household.

Thank you for allowing West River Electric to serve you.

We're Ready for Storms. Are You?

Brendan Nelson
Manager of Operations

Living in western South Dakota means experiencing a little bit of everything when it comes to weather. From severe thunderstorms and hail to high winds, lightning, and even early-season snowstorms, Mother Nature can change conditions quickly and sometimes without much warning.

At West River Electric, preparing for storms is a year-round effort. Our crews continuously inspect and maintain equipment, trim vegetation near power lines, upgrade infrastructure, and stand ready to respond when severe weather impacts our system. While we work hard to keep the lights on, there are times when weather conditions can cause power outages that are beyond anyone's control. 11609700

That's why it's important for members to be prepared as well.

Build an Emergency Kit

Having basic emergency supplies on hand can make a significant difference during an outage. Consider keeping the following items readily available:

- Flashlights and extra batteries
- Battery-powered or hand-crank radio
- Portable phone chargers or power banks
- Bottled water and non-perishable food
- First aid supplies
- Necessary medications
- Blankets and extra clothing
- Pet supplies, if applicable

Prepare Your Home

Take a few simple steps before severe weather arrives:

- Secure outdoor furniture and loose objects that could become airborne in high winds.
- Trim dead tree branches around your property.
- Know how to manually open electric garage doors.
- Keep refrigerators and freezers closed during outages to preserve food.
- Consider backup power options if someone in your household relies on electrically powered medical equipment.

Stay Informed

Weather forecasts and emergency alerts provide valuable information before and during severe weather events. Monitor local weather reports and enable emergency notifications on your mobile devices.

If an outage occurs, report it to West River Electric through SmartHub or by calling our offices. Avoid downed power lines should there be any and always assume a downed line is energized and dangerous. Stay far away and immediately report it to West River Electric or local emergency responders.

During an Outage

Safety should remain your top priority.

- Use flashlights instead of candles whenever possible.
- Unplug sensitive electronics to protect them from power surges when service is restored.
- Leave one light switched on so you'll know when power returns.
- Never operate generators indoors or in enclosed spaces such as garages.
- Stay clear of utility crews and equipment while restoration work is underway.

Prepared Together

Storms are unpredictable, but preparation doesn't have to be. While West River Electric remains committed to maintaining a reliable electric system and restoring power safely and efficiently when outages occur, preparedness starts at home.

By taking a few simple precautions today, you can help ensure your family stays safe and comfortable when severe weather strikes tomorrow. 2825500
